MOKENA, ILLINOIS. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1928

CORNER STONE LAYING SERVICES ARE IMPRESSIVE

The corner stone laying of the new Mokena public school held last Saturday afternoon was quite well attended in spite of the cold, damp weather and the fact that the ceremonies were held out of doors under a threatening sky.

N. F. Heiman, former president of the Mokena Parent-Teachers Association was the master of ceremonies.

In a few well chosen words Mr. Heiman gave a resume of some of the forward steps which have been made in Mokena during the past few years, the first one being the erection of the magnificent St. John Evangelical church building. He then showed how the Parent-Teachers Association was formed and began a movement favoring a new school building. The first step in this direction was the purchase of the new school site and after this was paid for a bond issue proposition was placed before the voters of Mokena at an election last April and the issue carried by a big majority. The next step was the engaging of an architect and the commencement of building operations.

The first speaker introduced by Mr. Heiman, was Rev. W. J. Cramer, pastor of the St. John Evangelical church. He gave a very fine talk on the need of better education and broader and larger conceptions of life. He used as the basis around which he built his address the Latin word "Amplius" meaning large.

The second speaker was Rev. Glen T. Beatty of the Mokena M. E. church. He praised the school board for the fine new school building now in course of construction and also paid special tribute to the men who built the old school way back in 1872.

County Superintendent of Schools August Maue of Joliet was the last speaker. He stressed the need of higher education, giving statistical figures showing how a person with higher intellectual attainments can command bigger salaries and make a better mark in the world than a person of limited education. He said that it costs $1,750,000 to operate all the public schools in Will County annually. He declared that through the whole United States two billion dollars are spent annually for school purposes. He said a like amount was spent for tobacco which did not accomplish the good that a like amount expended for education does. He praised the local school board for the well planned building, etc.

The corner stone was laid by Elmer L. Cooper, president of the school board. A copy of the News-Bulletin, Joliet Herald-News, and the Chicago Tribune, pictures showing various views of the town, school statistical matter and other papers together with a silk American flag coin of 1928 mintage and several other articles were placed in the copper box which was sealed and then placed in the corner stone which was then sealed with cement.

This affair was a red letter day for Mokena and one that will be looked upon with pride by this and future generations.

The school children sang a number of songs during and at the closing of the exercises, a prayer was offered by Rev. W. J. Cramer.

Dr. Hite to Address Orland Park P. T. A.

The program committee of the Orland Park Parent-Teachers Association have been fortunate in getting Dr. Hite to speak at their next meeting Thursday, Nov. 8 at 8 p. m.

Dr. Hite is one of the foremost leaders in this part of the country in the field of child psychology. He will speak on the psychology of childhood or the problem of the child as it finds its adjustment to life. This will be a rare opportunity for the parents of this section to hear this problem discussed by such an expert in the field.

The surrounding communities are invited to attend the meeting. It will be open to all.

The program committee plans from time to time to bring in outside speakers as the opportunity presents itself.

The Other Side of The Lauffer Case

My Dear Mr. Semmler:-

In regard to the item in the Bulletin a week ago, I wish you would make a correction.

You stated that I paid court costs in the trial of George Lauffer. This is incorrect, as what ever expenses and costs accrued were paid by him. I did not pay one cent (not even attorney's fees) and it would have been unfair if it had cost me anything what ever, considering the fact that Mr. Lauffer was married sometime ago this seemed a fair verdict to each side.

Kindly give this correction as much prominence as you gave the

MISTAKE CAUSE OF EXPLOSION AND INJURIES

Joseph Reilly, aged 50 years old of Orland Park who is employed on the new Southwest highway now under course of construction, met with a very serious accident last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Reilly was engaged in filling and lighting one of the road torches known as "pineapples" when he ran short of kerosene. He went to a can and ordered a gallon of kerosene put in a can. After the order was filled he went back on the highway and was engaged in lighting one of the torches which was near the oil can when there was a sudden explosion and the can blew up. The can had been filled with naphtha by mistake and the fumes became ignited from the torch. The burning liquid was thrown over Mr. Reilly. His clothes were all on fire in an instant. Two boys returning from the Palos golf grounds where they had been caddying, saw Mr. Reilly's plight. They rolled him, tore the burning clothes from his body and finally rolled him in a puddle of water. Mr. Reilly was rushed to the St. Francis hospital at Blue Island. He suffered terrible burns on his chest, back, face, hands and all the hair was singed off his head. He will recover, it is said, but may have to remain in bed until Christmas.

The party that had filled the can with naphtha by mistake, noticed the error after Mr. Reilly had left and tried to reach him by phone but could not locate him. A dispatch by auto to rush to the Southwest highway and warn Mr. Reilly of his danger, but he arrived too late.

Specimen Ballots In This Issue

In this issue of the News-Bulletin will be found a copy of the specimen ballot of the election to be voted on together with the specimen ballots of the Will County Bond Issue for $1,750,000 for the purpose of constructing 58 miles of concrete road in Will County by special taxation and of the $20,000,000 state game and hunting preserve proposition. Read over all these ballots with care and remember this, that some voters seem to be under the impression that leaving the small ballot blank on the bond issue proposition is in effect voting against the bonds. Only those ballots which are marked will be counted and if there are more "NO" ballots than "YES", the bond issue will be defeated and if the reverse, it will carry. The proposition does not require a majority of all the votes cast.

No matter whether you are in favor of the bond issue or not, be sure to mark the ballot one way or the other when you go into the booth on election day, next Tuesday November 6th.

The big local fight in Will County that will interest the voters of the county the most in the election next Tuesday is the proposition of floating a bond issue for $1,750,000 for the purpose of constructing 58 miles of paved highways in Will County. There is much sentiment for the bond issue in certain parts of the county, while on the other hand, there is also much sentiment against the proposition in Joliet and the eastern part of the county. It is now up to the voters of Will County to decide whether they wish to pay a special tax each year for the next 20 years to build these roads, or if they want to defeat the issue and let the state build these roads under the proposed road program of Louis L. Emmerson, if he is elected governor.

The Joliet Chamber of Commerce Good Roads Committee is spending much money in putting out circulars to all voters of the county and for advertising, boosting the bond issue and asking the voters of the county to support the proposition.

May Spend $50,000 On Lake Project

It is reported that Orland Park is in line for a big development in the not distant future. The report is, that the Cook County Board has set aside $50,000 for the purpose of building an artificial lake in the Forest Preserve at Orland Park. It is proposed to dredge the present spring fed slough and make a lake out of it and stock the lake with fish. It is also proposed by the Orland Park Lions Club to ask the forest preserve committee to place deer in the Orland forest preserve along the same plan as the board has done in placing buffalos in the Palos Park forest preserve. The Orland Park Lions Club is going to take the matter up of pushing the lake proposition so that the proposed project may be taken up next spring.

Editor The News-Bulletin
Dear Sir:-

Just a few lines to let you know we still get the Bulletin and enjoy reading the different news items.

The weather is nice. Most farmers are finishing up their fall plowing. Threshing finally was completed. We had a long spell of heavy rains this last September that caused a somewhat delayed threshing. It also did damage to some grain by sprouting.

Our crop was fair. Wheat averaged 12 bushels per acre, Rye 16 bushels, Barley 25 bushels, Oats 33 bushels, Speltz 40 bushels and Flax 9 bushels. The grain is all of a very good quality most of it going No. 1. Potatoes are also plentiful they are very cheap. The prices of the different grains is rather low. Wheat is selling under a dollar here in our town.

The corn crop was damaged by early frost, still in all some fields yielded 25 to 30 bushels per acre. There are a large number of farmers who have built silos this summer. They sure are a success in this country and will play an important part in the feeding program. I must also say the silos are Trencho silos dug in the ground. They have a big advantage over the stave silo. Cheaper to erect and less expense to keep in repair, and then the ensilage does not freeze.

I must close now and at the same time thru your columns say "Hello" to all the folks and friends.

I remain as ever,

Members of a Rock Island freight train crew found the body of an unidentified man about 40 years of age, lying beside the tracks west of New Lenox near the Gougar crossing at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. It is thought the man was hit by a train. Death was caused by a skull fracture and it is thought the man was dead only a short time.

The man is described as being 5 feet, 9 inches in height, with light hair and blue eyes. The left ear was mutilated, part of it having been frozen or cut off.

The body was brought to the Chamberlain and Sloan undertaking rooms at Joliet.

Mrs. Combs Attends Garden Club Meet

The Third District Garden Committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs of which Mrs. Wallace B. Combs is the chairman, met with Mrs. Mary Doyling of the Ivanclub on Monday. It was an enthusiastic group of club representatives of which this committee is composed, women awake and alert to the importance of the endeavor to carry out the slogan of the Federation to have Illinois the Garden state in the U. S. A. in 1930. These club representatives, reported having formed garden circles in their respective organizations.

It is the aim of the committee to increase the number Garden circles rapidly or until every woman has had an opportunity to claim membership. The study of Gardening not only embraces conservation, but it also means a greater knowledge of Art, Citizenship, community service and greatest of all the American Home.

Following the business transaction and study hour a buffet luncheon was served by the hostess. They will meet again on Dec. 10th for an all day session with Dr. Donaldson who is the representative for the Hamilton Park Woman's clubs.

Fire Destroys Wm. Andres Home

Fire destroyed the house on the Wm. Andres farm south of Tinley Park Monday morning about 10 o'clock. The family were all out in the field husking corn when a neighbor saw flames on the roof around the chimney.

The Tinley Park volunteer fire department was summoned and quickly responded with their chemical truck, but the flames had made too much headway and were beyond control. Household goods and clothes were saved. It was a two story building and was about 35 years old. The loss is estimated at about $7,000 covered by insurance.

A defective chimney is thought to have been the cause of the fire. The Andres family are now living in Tinley Park.

Mokena Emmerson Club Holds Rousing Windup Rally

A rousing windup political rally was held under the auspices of the Mokena Emmerson Republican club in the church parlors of the St. John Evangelical church at Mokena last Saturday night.

A fine program was presented which met with enthusiastic acclaim by the audience.

Two speakers from the Republican State Central committee of Chicago were the principle speakers, Miss Grinnell spoke chiefly for ladies presenting the ideals and qualifications of the two candidates for the presidency of the United States.

Dr. Clark Thomas was the other speaker and made a fine comparison of the policies of the opposing parties and especially of the tariff question.

Mrs. George Arbeiter of Joliet, Will County chairman for the women voters gave an inspiring address on Louis Emmerson for governor and also touched on the national issues.

Mrs. Arnold Hensel, a precinct worker of Joliet also gave a brief pithy talk which went over big, especially her little story about kittens having their eyes opened.

A ladies quartet sang. The stage was attractively decorated with fruits of the fields, posters and the American flag.

County Treasurer, Walter G. Krohn of Joliet was also present.

L. G. Bruder, president of the club read the following telegram received in reply to an invitation sent to Mrs. Louis Emmerson to attend this rally at Mokena:

Springfield, Ill. Oct. 26, 1928
Mokena Emmerson Republican Club,
Mokena, Illinois

Mrs. Emmerson is away from Springfield and have advised her over phone of your invitation. She asks me to express her sincere thanks for your kindness and very great regard that she cannot be with you. She will attend meeting in Joliet but must return immediately to Chicago where a large affair will be given in her honor tomorrow evening. She hopes that your affair will be in every way a delightful one.

Vote Against Bond Issues, Urges the Peotone Vedette

When the voter goes into the polling place next Tuesday he or she will be handed three ballots. The largest will be the regular ballot containing the names of the candidates for the various offices.

One of the small ballots will contain the proposal to bond Will County in the sum of $1,750,000, the money to be used in building cement roads in the county.

The bond issue is being actively urged by the Joliet Chamber of Commerce and other groups working for the growth and development of the county seat, together with the promotion of real estate subdivisions and golf grounds between Joliet and Chicago. These boosters constantly refer to the proposed roads as "a county system."

The bond issue map lies before us, as we write. A brief glance at it shows what kind of a "system" it is. This "system" consists of 16 scraps or fragments of road located in widely separated parts of the county. These scraps vary in length from one mile to one stretch of eight or nine miles.

All of them, except one, lead nowhere in particular to another nowhere in particular. The map looks as if some blind-folded person had been given a red pencil and was told to make sixteen short lines, some straight and some crooked, on the paper. The one exception is a road connecting the city of Joliet with the Cook county road known as "the Southwest Highway". That one would furnish another road into Chicago past a number of proposed subdivisions and golf grounds. It is the longest road on the map. It runs through Joliet and New Lenox towns and the extreme southeast corner of Homer.

Another road forms what the Joliet boosters call "the County Boulevard." It circles around Joliet on the north, west and south sides, connecting at one end with State Route 4 and with State Route 7 at the other. This "boulevard" does not lead anywhere, except to the "point of beginning", when used in connection with Nos. 4 and 7.

Most of the other scraps of road are to be found in localities along the rivers and in spots where somebody, at no very distant day, will have land to sell to the county as forest preserves.

About two-thirds of the proposed roads are over routes which in the past few years have been constructed of macadam at great expense to the taxpayers of the county. Some of them have not been paid for. The bond boosters would have these ser-

We Want Louis L. Emmerson To Be Governor

Next Tuesday the voters of the great state of Illinois will be asked to engage the services of an efficient manager for their affairs of state and it behooves them to look well to whom they choose for this big job. For the past 12 years Louis L. Emmerson has made one of the best Secretaries of state that Illinois has ever had. He has shown real efficiency and when he entered the political arena as a candidate for the office of governor of Illinois, the News-Bulletin saw in him the right man for this big job and has endorsed him ever since. The News-Bulletin urges every voter to mark his or her ballot for Louis L. Emmerson and give him as big a majority as we gave him at the primary last April. Tell your friends to mark their ballot for Lou Emmerson and help give Illinois an intelligent, honest and efficient administration.

Mark your ballot for governor:

Editor News-Bulletin,
Mokena, Ills.
Dear Sir:-

In your October 5th, 1928 issue we note you so fairly expressed the attitude on both sides of the county roads BOND issue and hereby thank you for publishing both sides of the question, side by side, and further want to thank the author in being honest when he was boosting for the side of the proposition, when he stated "It is pointed out that farm land values will be increased by having highways paved and that is will provide paved roads in the Barr subdivision and the golf grounds, etc."

Well of course it will, at the expense of tax payers in other parts of the county which has always been the contention by those opposing.

We are glad the people of Frankfort township are taking the stand that the State should build these roads just as the candidates for Governor declare they will if elected and not expect a direct county bond issue, and expecting those living miles away in the black mud to be taxed for them.

Vote NO and dont forget it.

Will County Women Entertain Mrs. Emmerson

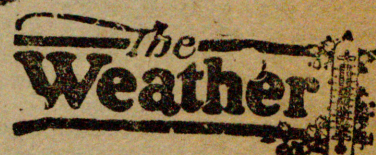

Last Saturday afternoon 1100 Republican women met at a tea at the Joliet Chamber of Commerce and had as their honored guests Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Emmerson who had left a big gathering in Chicago to be with their Will County friends to the windy city. Mrs. Litchy of Des Moines, Iowa who was a fellow student with Herbert Hoover in the LeLand Stanford University, California, spoke for Hoover's candidacy brought out many interesting points of the campaign. Mrs. Emmerson made a few brief remarks.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, Republican National Committeewoman for Illinois also brought a wonderful address. She was to have spoken at Mokena the same afternoon, but certain conditions arose that made it impossible for her to do so.

Among the women of Mokena attending this tea were Mrs. Francis Braun, Mrs. Carl Hirsch, Mrs. John Mattes, Mrs. Oscar Klose, Jr., Mrs. J. V. Hall and Mrs. Wm. Semmler.

Cattle Sell At $137 Average

The cow sale held Wednesday afternoon by Arthur Boyer at Tinley Park was well attended and the entire herd was sold at an average of $137. The highest price brought for one cow was $162. The demand for good tested dairy cattle is getting strong and it is likely that Mr. Boyer will have another load in soon. Edward Schmaedeke of Orland was the auctioneer.

A whole meal in one Swallow!

There is as much good in a spoonful of syrup pepsin as one would get from a basketful of fresh vegetables. Learn this secret, as many others have, and you'll not need to pamper your stomach or whip your bowels with any strong medicines. Nor will you have liver trouble.

So, don't give up rich foods. Don't go on a dull vegetable "diet." Just take a spoonful of syrup pepsin now and then—and forget everything else but your appetite at the table! If you have never made the syrup pepsin test, ten days may do surprising things for you—no matter how "fit" you may feel now. Children are helped wonderfully by this same skillful combination of laxative herbs and pure pepsin. Older people ward off auto-intoxication the same way. It is more than fifty years since Dr. Caldwell gave the world this prescription, yet today there is no druggist who hasn't it all put up and ready for you with directions.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You
Have Not Been Drinking
Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and sluggish. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of good water.

How They Welcomed Peace

Ten years ago, November 11, most of the civilized world forgot all other emotion except an unbounded joy at the news that an armistice had been declared in the World war. Photograph shows an informal parade gotten up by members of an American division at Bar-le-Duc, France, with the aid of the inhabitants of the town, upon receipt of the news.

Armistice day, a veteran of the World war relates, found my division in rest billets at Bar-le-Duc, with my regiment in a little village in the Vosage mountains, south of Verdun, which went under the magnificent name of Grand.

First official news that the armistice had been signed was received by the mayor of this little French village and the news was quickly spread, so that all the inhabitants, consisting particularly of women and old men, were on the village streets within a few minutes.

The men of my regiment were quickly notified and almost mobbed by the happy French people, the women, in particular, expressing their joy by hugging and kissing the American soldiers. Our own regimental band played the French and American national anthems and the French people danced and sang up and down the streets waving French and American flags which they secured from some unknown place.

The mayor of the village invited the officers of my regiment to drink to victory with him and all of us adjourned to the ever-present cafe, where he set up champagne in an inexhaustible supply, to which the American soldiers did full credit. The celebration continued long into the night and really lasted for several days thereafter.

A member of the division took the snapshot of the scene reproduced here.

Ten Years Ago at the Front

A decade ago Second division troops of the A. E. F. left a French rest camp for the Belleau Wood battlefield to help resist a German offensive.

The former doughboys and leathernecks in that World war outfit held their annual reunion festivities at St. Louis last June.

Led by Col. Hanford McNider, president of the Second Division association, a half-dozen generals, 100 or so colonels and majors and several thousand "top kicks," "second looles," corporals and privates, were present or accounted for when the operation got under way.

Much can be obliterated from memory in ten years, but it is doubtful if any of the Second division will have forgotten that daybreak a decade ago when the long convoy chugged out of the rest area near Chaumont-en-Vexin with themselves aboard.

Few but the officers who had seen the orders knew whether they were headed. Vague reports of the German success at Chemin-des-Dames had been heard, but the officers and men did not comprehend the gravity of the situation. For the second time in four years the German high command was throwing its gray-clad troops toward Paris, and all the Allied strength had been unable to stop them.

The Second division started out in gay fashion. The men cheered, sang and yelled. Then the convoy came closer to the front. They passed a long line of refugees and the singing and cheering stopped. The spectacle of those thousands of terrified people, fleeing desperately from their homes, gave the men their first profound understanding of the horrors of war.

Inferno of War.

At Meaux the confusion was terrific. The city was choked with refugees, wounded men, troops and trains of every description.

North of Meaux the troops were debussed. The Ninth infantry started immediately on a forced march to the line and the other regiments bivouacked for the night. German bombing planes made frequent visits over the camp and there was little sleep. At daybreak, June 1, the infantry and marine regiments marched toward Montreuil-aux-Lions, reaching positions in the rear of the line through Boneville Vaux, Boreches and Belleau woods that night, with nothing but a thin line of heroic French soldiers between them and the enemy.

Road to Paris Blocked.

June 1 the infantry began to block the Paris highway, and the next day all the infantry of the division was in line, with the Ninth on the right and the Marine brigade in the center. The Third infantry, one battalion of marines and the Fifth machine-gun battalion had been thrown along the line through Veully, Premont and Coulombs to re-establish liaison between two French corps which were resisting the Germans at this point.

Scattered French units still were holding the line. They had been engaged for six days, with little food and no rest. The nights of June 3-4 they were relieved and passed through the American lines.

June 4 the Second division was holding a 12-kilometer front, with no reserves between it and the Marne. It had crushed one enemy attack near Veully.

The first of a series of small, but difficult advances began June 6. From then until June 25 the fighting, particularly on the front of the Marine brigade, was most desperate. Division after division was thrown into the line by the German command in an effort to shatter the American lines between Vaux and Torchy. The marines ground their way slowly but steadily through the Bois-de-Belleau, and June 25, in a final brilliant dash, killed or captured the last Germans in the region. In recognition of the marines' heroic work the French changed the name of the woods to Bois de la Brigade Marine.

Morale Unshaken.

In the meantime the Third brigade had been holding its part of the line, morale unshaken by the constant and terrific shelling to which it was subjected. This outfit, like the marines, had no other cover than the shallow "fox holes" dug in the early part of June, and no food except "monkey meat" and the one cooked meal a day which came up at midnight. By July 1 the brigade had captured Vaux and the Bois de la Roche.

July 9 the division was relieved by the Twenty-sixth, taking up a reserve position along the line Montreuil-St.

A Hot Corner in the Woods.

Aulde. It had been in the line 40 days. In that time ten German divisions had been faced, from which had been captured 1,680 prisoners. Not only had the Second stopped the German drive on Paris in that sector, but it had advanced to an average depth of two kilometers on a front of eight kilometers. The losses totaled 9,131. But the Second division had demonstrated to the world that the American soldier had "arrived."

Remembrance

The hour has struck; the smoking guns
Are sullen, still. We dully wonder
Why the ensuing silence stuns
Our ears, long used to battle thunder.
We see charred splinters that were trees
In ravaged, shell-torn earth, blood-spattered,
And know that we are kin to these—
Our lives, our hopes, our bodies shattered.

Ten years have passed; the scars of war,
Though cruel, deep, are slowly healing;
Grain ripens where it did before,
New furrows gun-plowed earth concealing.
Men follow little gods, nor crave
Fine frenzy, high emprise, devotion;
Perhaps forget the boys who gave
Their all; who sleep beyond the ocean.

Thank God, this day is set aside
For reverent commemoration;
For us to know a grateful pride
And find a deeper consecration.
Our comrades of those gallant days
Who shared the conflict, grim and gory,
Need not our homage nor our praise—
They are, themselves, the greater glory!

Strong Ones of Earth

There are the strong ones of the earth, the mighty food for good or evil—those who knew how to keep silence when it is a pain and a grief to them; those who give time to their own souls to wax strong against temptation, or to the powers of wrath to stamp upon them their withering passage.—Emerson.

Keeping Scales Clean, Essential

Slight Displacement of Poise
May Result in Error in Weight.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A suggestion to weighmasters at public stock yards issued recently by the packers and stock yards division may also serve as a caution to farmers and live stock producers who maintain scales on their farms, the United States Department of Agriculture believes.

Attention to Details.

"It is essential," said the statement authorized by Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, "that weighmasters give careful attention to the smallest details. Alertness on their part may enable them to recognize and prevent the development of conditions, apparently trifling, which, however, may affect the weights obtained over the scales. For instance, it is important that the weighmaster keep the notches of the beam clean. A little dirt, causing a slight displacement of the poise, may result in an appreciable error in the weight. In a recent test it was found that, owing to an accumulation of dust in the notches, one of them was 12 pounds slow. This meant a loss to the seller of 12 pounds for every draft weighed over the scale in which this notch was used."

Using Compressed Air.

"It may be of interest to know that compressed air is now being used to clean the working parts of scales at one of the markets. An air compressor operated by a small gasoline engine and mounted on a yard wagon is pulled up to the scales and used for blowing out dust, dirt, and rust from round the pivots and bearings of the scale."

Alfalfa Thrives Best in Well-Prepared Bed

Alfalfa does best sowed in a seed-bed that is firm below the surface but has the surface in good tilth and free from weeds, says John H. Barron of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

If alfalfa is seeded with spring grain, fall-plowed land gives best results. But if the land was not plowed last fall, it should be plowed early in the spring and seeding should be delayed as long as possible. "Alfalfa cannot do well if the land is plowed today and the seed is sowed tomorrow," he says.

On land that is plowed this spring, the best practice is to plow early and then wait until June 15 or July 1 to sow the seed. At this time, of course, alfalfa would be sowed alone.

Alfalfa usually does not do well when it is sowed in either fall-sowed or spring-sowed grain, for even though the seed bed is firm, the surface is not in good tilth. Then, too, the grain overshadows the alfalfa and tends to choke it out.

Green Manure Crops Are Becoming of Importance

Green manure crops are becoming of greater importance each year on American farms for the reason that the new land is gone and the old must be maintained in fertility. There is, however, no cash value to a green manure crop and the tendency is to avoid planting one if it is not absolutely necessary. White sweet clover has been pastured successfully with no apparent loss in the improvement value of the crop when plowed under. It does not make as good hay as alfalfa, yet it is tolerable if handled properly. Best of all the seed is not expensive. At 15 to 20 pounds per acre the cost is somewhere around $2 an acre. Compared with two or three times that cost for other legumes the difference is striking. Even the much talked of soy beans will cost $4 an acre to seed. All of these factors make white sweet clover stand out as a crop worth becoming acquainted with and worth learning how to handle.

Agricultural Hints

Trees make about 67 per cent of their growth at night, and the rest in daylight.

Usually brood sows which have had rye pasture during the winter will farrow stronger and more thrifty pigs.

The size of the manure pit will depend upon the size of the herd, the method of handling the litter, and how often the pit can be emptied.

Farm machinery will help a lot in this farm relief idea—and you don't have to wait for congress to act, either.

What we need is for these one-horse farmers to find out that they can drive two, three and four horses at one time.

Have you tried working more than two horses to a machine? It pays to have plenty of power and one man direct the work.

One of the best ways to save hard-earned money on the farm is by protecting machinery from rust and ruin. Proper housing as soon as work permits will add years to the life of the machinery.

A Party of Achievement

THE Republican Party has a remarkable record of achievement. Nation and state have progressed and prospered under Republican rule.

Constructive Republican leadership in Illinois for more than 70 years—during which time there have been but two Democratic administrations—has won for this State an enviable position among the most progressive states of the Union.

The nominees of the party this year were selected at a primary in which more than 1,660,000 Republican voters participated. They were chosen because of their well-known honesty, ability and experience. Under their guidance Illinois will go forward with long strides during the coming four years.

They are pledged—

To hasten the construction of the bond issue system of roads and to undertake the working out of a plan for the surfacing of secondary roads, thus extending the benefits of paved highways to thousands of farms and small communities.

To apply business efficiency in highway construction and other public works.

To work out a sound, just and economic reform of the taxing system, in order to relieve homes, farms and other visible property of the unequal burden they now bear.

To cooperate in every way possible with agricultural interests for improvement of the condition of the farmer and to assist in securing national farm relief legislation.

To maintain a helpful attitude toward industry and to favor legislation for the protection of wage earners and the improvement of conditions under which they work.

To assist the coal mining industry by demanding the removal of the unfair differential on Illinois coal.

To extend and improve the charitable institutions and maintain the highest standards for the care and treatment of helpless wards of the state, free from spoils politics.

To insist upon regulation and management of public utilities in the interest of the public which they serve.

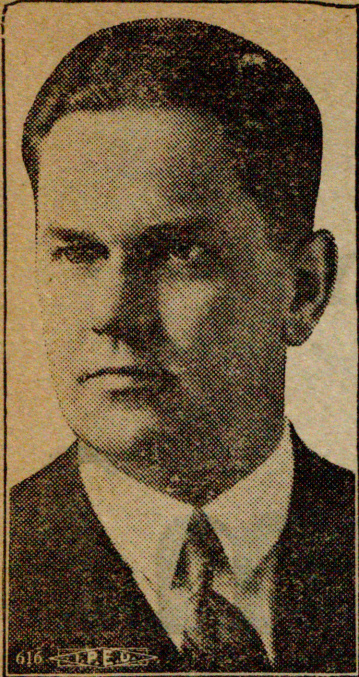

To complete the construction of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway and to urge the building of a waterway connecting Chicago with the Atlantic ocean through the great lakes.

These and other pledges are all summed up in the one promise of efficient and economic state government.

Hitchcock Lauds Hoover

Senator Hitchcock (Dem.) of Nebraska, Administration leader in the Senate, quoted in Herbert Hoover's behalf in the Senate January 23, 1919, said then:

"I know something of the struggle Mr. Hoover has had with the packing combines in the United States, and I want to say that if there had not been a Hoover and a Food Administration, the packers would have made a great deal more than they did make. Mr. Hoover has been vindicated. He came out of the war, I believe, with a better reputation than any other public official."

Came Out of War Clean

"Herbert Hoover came out of the war clean," declared Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, in the Senate in 1919. "He came out having rendered a great service to the American people. He came out at the head of a great army of volunteer citizens—men, women and children—who had, at his request, saved and skimped, and had thus helped him to conserve the food that was necessary to win the war."

Who Will Solve the Farm Problem?

It is easier to shed tears over the farmer's plight than to study his problems and work out remedies based upon FACTS—not upon a city politician's impressions.

Promises are free as air—good intentions are worthless unless backed by both experience and understanding.

In short, the man best fitted for the job is

Herbert Hoover —he knows how

Give him a chance to do it.

Hoover's definite, workable plans, based upon long experience and sympathetic understanding, are infinitely better than vague promises without comprehension—and with the menace of an Underwood tariff free list on agricultural products lurking in the background.

Elect Hoover and Curtis—both long identified with farm relief, and both by birth and training thoroughly familiar with its details—to solve the farm problem. They know how!

Mokena Emmerson Republican Club

Republican Working Program

1. Tariff Protection "An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief... The domestic market must be protected. Foreign products raised under lower standards of living are today competing in our home markets. I would use my office and influence to give the farmer the full benefit of our historic tariff policy."

Hoover Acceptance Speech, Aug. 11, 1928

2. Lowered Transportation Costs "A large portion of the spread between what the farmer receives for his products and what the ultimate consumer pays is due to increased transportation charges... These increases have been added to the cost to the farmer of reaching seaboard and foreign markets and result therefore in reduction of his prices... Nature has endowed us with a great system of inland waterways. Their modernization... would mean so large an increment in farmers' prices as to warrant their construction many times over. There is no more vital method of farm relief."

Hoover Acceptance Speech, Aug. 11, 1928

3. Marketing System "An outstanding proposal of the Party program is the whole-hearted pledge to undertake the reorganization of the marketing system upon sounder and more economical lines... the creation of a Federal Farm Board of representative farmers... especially to build up with Federal finance farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations which will protect the farmer from the depressions and demoralization of seasonal gluts and periodical surpluses."

Hoover Acceptance Speech, Aug. 11, 1928

"In the past seven and a half years Congress has passed more than a score of constructive Acts in direct aid of the farmer and the improvement of his marketing system. They have contributed greatly to strengthen the agricultural industry. Our party has undertaken to go farther than this and to still further reorganize farmers' marketing systems, placing it on a basis of greater stability and security. I may repeat these proposals. We stand specifically pledged to create a Federal Farm Board of men sympathetic with the problem, to be clothed with powers and resources with which not only to further aid farmers' cooperatives and assist generally in solving the multitude of different farm problems which arise from all quarters of our nation, but in particular to build up with initial advances of capital from the government, farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations which will protect the farmer from depressions and the demoralization of summer and periodic surpluses. Such an instrumentality should be able to develop as years go by on the constructive measures necessary to solve the new farmers' problems that will inevitably arise. It is no proposal of subsidy or fee or tax upon the farmer. It is a proposal to assist the farmer onto his own feet into control of his own destinies. This is not a theoretic formula. It is a business proposition designed to make farming more profitable. No such far-reaching and specific proposal has ever been made by a political party on behalf of any industry in our history. It marks our desire for establishment of farmers' stability and at the same time maintains his independence and individuality."

Hoover Elizabethton Address, Oct. 6, 1928

4. Government Cooperation "I have steadily endeavored to build up a system of cooperation between the government and business... without interference or regulation... have secured progress in the industries, remedy for abuses, elimination of waste, reduction of cost in production and distribution... and more stable employment and profit... I should wish to apply the same method to agriculture... I am convinced that this form of action, as it has done in other industries, can greatly benefit farmer, distributor and consumer."

Hoover Acceptance Speech, Aug. 11, 1928

5. Increased Exports "We realized that we must energetically promote the sale of our farmers' surplus abroad... We set out upon a definitely organized campaign to build up the products... of the American farm... On any calculation our exports have increased by over one billion dollars during the past seven years... Foreign trade... is a vital contribution to the welfare of the... American farmer. I propose that we shall continue this service to our people."

Hoover Newark Speech, Sept. 17, 1928

The Democratic Program

Don't Know "When the farmer stops sitting on top of the world and begins thinking and keeping the rules of economics, he will begin to help himself... I can't think of any way of really helping the farmers. If they could bring me a good suggestion, I should be glad to adopt it. The fact is, they are the only ones who can save themselves."

Smith Speech at Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26, 1927

"A Commission" "...I have pledged myself to name a non-partisan commission of farm leaders and students of the problem to work out these details."

Smith Speech at Omaha, Neb., Sept. 18, 1928

Will County Farmers!

Have no fear of Herbert Hoover. Since Lincoln there has been no man in public life who has the knowledge and understanding of your troubles, your problems, aims, and ambitions, such as is possessed by Hoover.

His genius for organization and his ability as a leader and an executive assure you that when he turns to a solution of your problems—as he has pledged he will—they will be solved, not for political gain but for your sake and for your greater prosperity.

Hoover has known the feel of the plow-handles, as well as the pick and shovel. In a recent speech at his boyhood home in Iowa, he said:

"As a boy, we ground our wheat and corn on toll at the mill; we slaughtered our hogs for meat; we wove at least a part of our clothing; we repaired our own machinery; we got our fuel from the woods; we erected our own buildings; we made our own soap; we preserved our own fruit and vegetables."

You can trust him to do for you what he would have liked to have done for his own neighbors years ago—make farming a more profitable business—with more pleasures and less chance of loss.

Hoover Did Not Fix Grain Prices

Read this Illinois Farmer's Letter:

Bloomington, Ill.,

August 27, 1928.

Mr. Geo. B. Boardman,
Plainfield, Ill.

Dear Sir:

Replying to yours of August 13th. I have received a number of similar requests and the facts are as stated in the news article that I gave to the Associated Press a few weeks ago.

President Wilson through authority of Congress and under war conditions was authorized to find a reasonable price for the 1917 crop of wheat. In attempting to do so he asked that a list of forty names of representative American men, business, professional and farmers be submitted to him and from which he himself selected a committee of twelve. The writer happened to be one of the twelve men who was "drafted" to undertake the job.

We saw Mr. Hoover only once and that was the first day the Committee met, in a room on the sixth floor of what was once the old Albany Hotel in Washington. Mr. Hoover appeared before the Committee and explained to us why we had been called to Washington and what our duties were under the law.

We were there for weeks with day and night sessions. We had the entire staff of the Department of Agriculture at our disposal as well as a number of people from the Congressional Library working and ferreting out statistics, history and costs of production of wheat, not only in America but throughout the entire world.

After days of wrangling and much argument a compromise was agreed upon which resulted in $2.20 per bushel.

So far as I know Mr. Hoover was not notified of the Committee's final conclusions until after we had walked over to the White House and presented our agreement to President Wilson. The following day President Wilson in whose authority the Congress had given, announced the price at $2.20, concurring with the findings of the Committee.

Mr. Hoover as Food Administrator was then authorized by the President to carry out the edict of that authorization.

Mr. Hoover is being accused of a lot of things that he did not do during the war.

I was in daily contact with him ten years ago and my way of thinking about the present as well as of our country's future is to take into consideration the noble and some of the almost super-human activities that Herbert Hoover did accomplish and after carefully analyzing the situation that now confronts us to decide which of the two men - Hoover or Smith - we would rather trust to guide the destiny of our country's welfare for the next four years.

To me it is no longer a case of whether Hoover is a Republican or Al Smith a Democrat. My vote will be cast for the man whom I feel will be best fitted to fill the office of President of the United States and who with experience, character and foresight I have the confidence in to act as our national leader.

Very truly yours,

E. D. Erickson

Hoover's Proposal for Farm Relief

Differences of opinion as to both causes and remedy have retarded the completion of a constructive program of relief. It is our plain duty to search out the common ground on which we may mobilize the sound forces of agricultural reconstruction. Our platform lays a solid basis upon which we can build. It offers an affirmative program.

An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief. Our consumers increase faster than our producers. The domestic market must be protected.

A large portion of the spread between what the farmer receives for his products and what the ultimate consumer pays is due to increased transportation charges. Increase in railway rate has been one of the penalties of the war. These increases have been added to the cost to the farmer of reaching seaboard and foreign markets and result therefore in reduction of his prices. Nature has endowed us with a great system of inland waterways. Their modernization will comprise a most substantial contribution to midwest farm relief and to the development of twenty of our interior states. These improvements would mean so large an increment in farmers' prices as to warrant their construction many times over. There is no more vital method of farm relief.

But we must not stop here.

An outstanding proposal of the Party program is the whole-hearted pledge to undertake the reorganization of the marketing system upon sounder and more economical lines. We have already contributed greatly to this purpose by the acts supporting farm co-operatives, the establishment of intermediate credit banks, the regulation of stockyards, public exchanges and the expansion of the Department of Agriculture. The platform proposes to go much farther. It pledges the creation of a Federal Farm Board of representative farmers to be clothed with authority and resources with which not only to still further aid farmers' co-operatives and pools and to assist generally in solution of farm problems but especially to build up with Federal finance, farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations which will protect the farmer from the depressions and demoralization of seasonal gluts and periodical surpluses.

Objection has been made that this program, as laid down by the Party Platform, may require that several hundred millions of dollars of capital be advanced by the Federal Government without obligation upon the individual farmer. With that objection I have little patience. A nation which is spending ninety billions a year can well afford an expenditure of a few hundred millions for a workable program that will give to one-third of its population their fair share of the nation's prosperity.

Vote for Hoover, the Great Humanitarian and Master Executive. The only prosperity this country has enjoyed in fifty years, has been under Republican Rule.

Keep the Republican Party
In Power.

FINANCING HOOVER CAMPAIGN

Hoover Great Executive

Hoover represents the organized business interests of the country. He is one of the greatest executives and while he may not be as good a politician as the governor of New York, he will likely make one of the best working presidents the country has ever had.—Peoria (Ill.) Star.

Hoover Saved 20,000,000

"How many lives have ties Hoover organizations saved since the armistice?" I asked a European who knows. "Ten million at a minimum," he replied. "But if you said twenty million, you'd probably stand within the truth."—Will Truth.

Hoover in Hearts of People

"In my opinion, Mr. Hoover stands in the hearts of the American people equal to any man in the United States. I am sure that there is no member of the Senate who, if he ran for President against Hoover, would be able to poll as many votes as he would poll."—Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, in 1919.

Wisdom in Pictures

One of the finest cartoons that has been published in some time is that showing a lot of Tammanyites rushing to save a struggling farmer who had fallen into the water. When the drowning farmer saw who was approaching him, he yelled back: "Go away, you fellows; I don't want to be saved."

Hoover's Americanism

Mr. Hoover not only is American in every fiber, but he is one of those who knows and can tell why he is an American. Any whose conceptions of partisanship tempt them to question his mental status reasonably may be asked to look into their own minds and see if they are equally prepared to tell why they are Americans.—Buffalo News.

The Orchard Watchman

Tammany Hall has been the watchman of that orchard, the city treasury, more often than any other organization, and greedy as well as immature men have usually been assigned to its outposts.

Big John Kennedy told his protegee: "A man who can take care of himself with his hands, and who never lets whiskey fool him or steal his head can go far in this game of politics. An' it's a pretty good game at that, is politics, and can be brought to pay like a bank."—M. R. Werner in Tammany Hall.

Supports G. O. P.

Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, has announced his support of Herbert Hoover for the presidency. He is one of the most influential leaders of the Progressive-Farm bloc in the Senate and his influence among the farmers in his own and in neighboring states is recognized by his fellow members in the upper house.

1. Herbert Hoover's father, settling in Iowa, wrested a hard-earned living from the soil as a pioneer farmer.

2. His natural bent for machinery asserted itself, and he opened a blacksmith shop, and sold farm machinery.

3. Grandfather Minthorn, on his mother's side, was a bookish farmer, who used to read as he rode horseback.

4. Hoover's mother was a great reader and a serious-minded critic of such literature as reached the farm.

1. One of Hoover's greatest hobbies has been the elimination of waste in industry.

2. Another is the "Better Homes in America" movement, now organized in many cities.

3. As head of the radio, he issued the first broadcasting license in history.

4. He has laid great stress on commercial aviation and has stimulated its development.

That Everlasting Hungry Wail.

Thomas Nast in Harpers Weekly, Oct. 10, 1880

THE presidency has long been the ambition of Tammany Hall. When Thomas Nast drew this cartoon almost half a century ago, "Honest John" Kelly looked toward the White House with covetous eyes. So had Tweed and later so did Croker and Murphy. It was chiefly as a result of Nast's cartoons against Tammany Hall that public opinion was aroused and the "Tweed ring" met with disaster. His cartoons aroused Tammany more than all the editorials leveled against it and Nast was offered half a million dollars to halt them and "study art in Europe." Refusing, he continued to draw with a courageous hand and a perceiving and prophetic eye. Nast originated the Republican elephant, the Democratic donkey and the Tammany tiger.

A Personal Appeal To You From John W. Jaranowski Republican Candidate for RECORDER OF DEEDS

My Dear Friends:-

I am writing to you directly in the interest of fair play and common decency in political affairs in Cook County.

Since my candidacy for Recorder of Deeds has been attacked on grounds which have no relationship to the Recorder's office, I ask you to consider the following facts:

It is true and I plead guilty to having been born poor in the Calumet District. I plead guilty to the fact that my parents were foreign by birth, but intensely American by choice. I plead guilty to the fact that I have had to work with my hands and earn my living by the sweat of my brow. But I am not ashamed of the fact that every cent I have in this world I have had to earn in the school of hard knocks.

I am proud of my friends and my neighbors and of the community in which I was born and live. It made me what I am, and I have been and will remain loyal to it. I have helped in its development, as it has helped me. I have secured for it roads and bridges and public improvements and made it a better place to live in. I am proud of the fact that the medical and dental clinic which I helped to establish for adults and kiddies in Calumet City has done a world of good.

My community helped elect me a County Commissioner. On the County Board, I have tried to conserve the taxpayers money, and I have been especially solicitous for the small taxpayer. I have been for the budget system and been against illegal expenditures, no matter how powerful the influence behind them. It has made me enemies, something I had to expect.

As a candidate for County Recorder I am the only candidate who has declared for civil service for all county employees. I am the only candidate who has declared for saving the taxpayers money by the consolidation or abolishing of offices or appointment instead of election of certain officers. I stand first and always for every taxpayer receiving 100 cents on the dollar for every dollar expended.

I pledge you on my honor as a man that when elected Recorder, the office of Recorder of Deeds will be run on the basis of efficiency, economy and courtesy to the public, and that the profits therefrom will be sufficient to have a material effect in lowering taxation.

On that platform I ask your vote for me for Recorder of Deeds.

JOHN W. JARANOWSKI

How Fashion Changes Affect Cotton Market

When the slim, one-piece dress, the simple, close-fitting undergarments and the silk-from-top-to-toe hose replaced the starched, long-sleeved, high-necked shirtwaist, the voluminous, ruffled flounce petticoats and the substantial cotton stockings worn early in the 1900's, there was a marked decline in the consumption of cotton goods yardage for women's clothes, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Requirements of industries for cotton, however, have grown sufficiently in recent years to offset any effect of the marked style changes in clothing on per capita consumption which averaged 27.3 pounds from 1922 to 1927 compared with 26.6 pounds in the five crop years from 1906 to 1910.

Twenty years ago, women generally owned only one silk dress and this was carefully packed away, stuffed with paper to prevent cracking, and brought out for weddings or funerals. Cotton dresses, underwear and hose furnished the bulk of their wardrobes. Today, the situation is entirely changed for many women, as silk and rayon are crowding cotton out of the picture so far as clothing is concerned, and single cotton dresses hang in closets filled with silk garments.

Changes in fashion have been chiefly responsible for the decreased use of cotton clothes, although prices of raw cotton have been advancing while other textiles have been marked lower. In the past five years, the average cost of raw cotton was nearly 70 per cent more than in the five years preceding the war. Raw silk prices, at the present time on the other hand, are the lowest in ten years, and the rapid expansion in rayon production has brought lower prices for this fiber, also.

Every purchaser of a new Ford is entitled to Free Inspection Service for the first 1500 miles

THE modern automobile is a finely built piece of machinery and it will stand a lot of abuse. Considering the work it does, it gives surprisingly little trouble. But there isn't a car made that will not run better and longer if given proper care.

The first few hundred miles are especially important because that is when the mechanism of your car is being broken in.

Proper attention during this period will lengthen its life and prevent unnecessary trouble later on.

We are particularly interested in this matter because we believe it is our duty not only to make a good automobile, but to help the owner get the greatest possible use over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

With this in view, the entire Ford dealer organization has been specially trained and equipped to service the new Model A car.

Furthermore, we have instructed every Ford dealer to give the following Free

Inspection Service at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles:

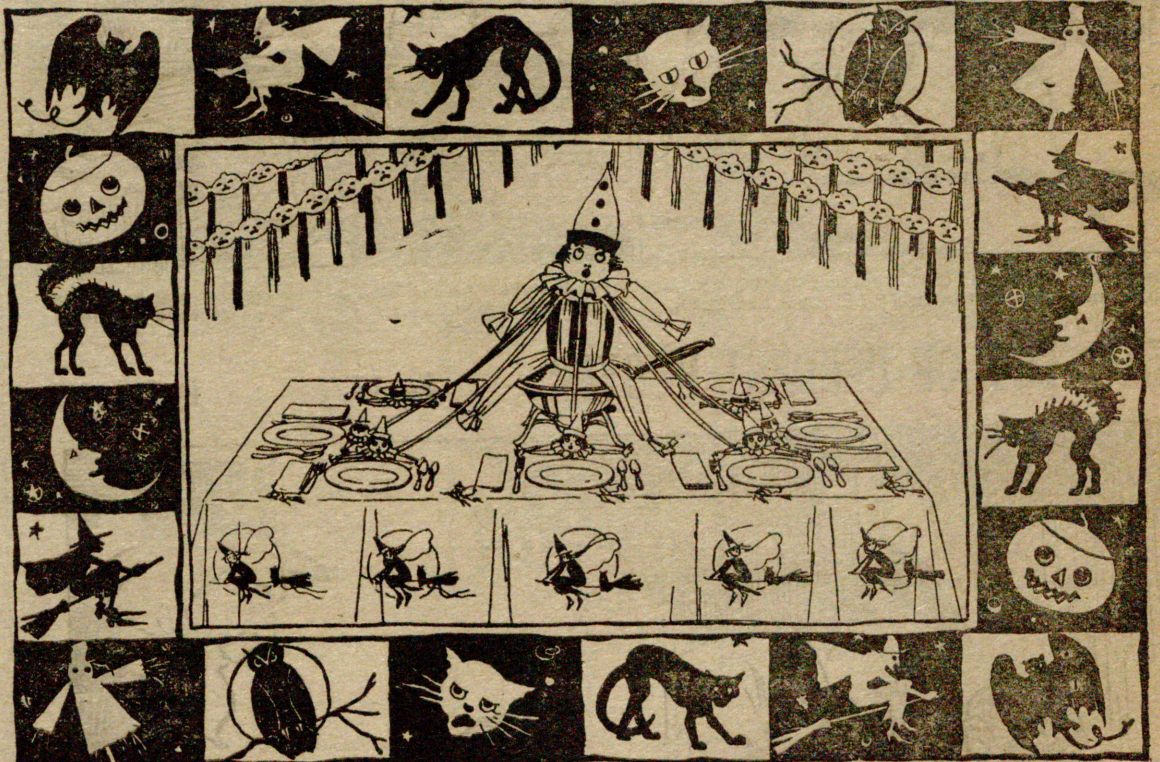

- Check battery
- Check generator charging rate
- Check distributor adjustment
- Check carburetor adjustment
- Check lights
- Check brakes
- Check shock absorber adjustment
- Check tire inflation
- Check steering gear
- Change engine oil
- Lubricate chassis

No charge is made for labor or materials incidental to this service, except, of course, where repairs are necessary through accident, misuse or neglect. The only charge is for new oil.

See your Ford dealer, therefore, and get this Free Inspection of your new car at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. Find out, too, how little it will cost to have your car given a thorough going-over at regular periods thereafter.

A checking-up by experienced mechanics, together with oiling and greasing every 500 miles, will add months and years to the life of your car and mean more economical and pleasurable motoring every mile you drive.

When Witches Fly

WITCHES have their own ideas of what constitutes a proper Halloween menu—ideas which differ greatly from ours. The only similarity is that in each case there are certain foods which seem synonymous with Hallowe'en.

Cider, apples, nuts, cheese, doughnuts, pop-corn, gingerbread, pumpkin pie—these are the things, somehow, that we take for granted for this feast. Yet they must be combined so skillfully with other, more unusual dishes that their routine character makes for greater, rather than less, novelty.

A Chafing Dish Supper

The type of party will to a certain extent determine the type of refreshments served. For instance, if you are having just a few intimate friends in for the evening, you might like the following chafing dish supper:

- Kidney Blanquette
- Jack-o-Lantern Salad
- Cheese-Nut Crackers
- Gingerbread and Whipped Cream
- Cider
- Spice Drops
- Coffee

To make the kidney blanquette melt one tablespoon of butter, add one small onion chopped fine and six lamb kidneys which have been cleaned and cut in dice. Dust with one tablespoon of flour, then add one cup of canned beef bouillon, and salt, tabasco and red pepper to taste. Cook slowly and serve on slices of cold boiled ham, slightly frizzled previously in a saucepan.

To make the salad, prepare gelatin-vegetable salad in the regular way; only the carrots are cut in slices crossways, and, with a sharp knife, eyes, nose and mouth are cut out of the golden circle, thus bringing a jack-o-lantern to mind. The circles are so arranged in the mold that they will show when it is turned out.

An Informal Meal

The cheese and nuts are ground together in a food chopper and moistened with a little cream, if necessary, then spread on the crackers. The other items are familiar to all housewives.

A less formal supper and one easier to prepare for a large crowd is:

- Frankfurters in Finger Rolls
- Sweet Pickled Pear Salad
- Potato Doughnuts
- Brown Bread and Butter Sandwiches
- Salted Peanuts
- Pumpkin Tarts
- Candied Apples on Sticks
- Cider
- Coffee

To make the salad, mix cream cheese with ground nuts and minced pimientos, then fill the holes of the sweet pickled pears with the mixture. Place a pear, round side up, on a lettuce leaf. Stick cloves in for eyes and lay pieces of pimiento on for the eyes and nose—thus making a queer, gnome-like face. Pipe mayonnaise around the pear with a pastry tube.

Potato doughnuts are unusually delicious and keep well. Cream two tablespoons of butter, add one and one-half cups sugar, three beaten egg yolks and beat to a cream

Beat in one cup of hot, mashed potatoes. Add alternately one-half cup of evaporated milk diluted with one-half cup water, and about four cups flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg. Fold in the beaten whites of three eggs. Toss one-third of the mixture on a floured board, knead lightly and roll out. Shape with a doughnut cutter and fry in deep fat. Add scraps to half of the remaining mixture and repeat, and do the same with the remainder. When cold, dust with powdered sugar.

Table Decorations

Pumpkin tarts are made in this way: mix two cups canned pumpkin, and one and one-eighth cups sugar, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons ginger, and one teaspoon cinnamon. Stir in three well-beaten egg yolks and two cups milk. Beat three egg whites stiffly and fold in. Fill pastry-lined tart tins with the mixture. Bake for ten minutes at a temperature of 450° F., then reduce it to 325° for the rest of the time. The tarts are done when a knife inserted comes out clean. Serve with a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each.

An amusing table decoration is made by preparing a jack-o-lantern of suitable size. One made of papier maché or of a real pumpkin may be used. Black cats cut from decorated crepe paper and wired can stand up around the grinning head. Packages of mints can have cardboard cats pasted to them and then will do for favors.

This view of the new Six-Speed Special chassis shows the exclusive 2-speed rear axle and a front view of the gears. The gears are shown in low reduction, the drive in this position being through the countershaft gears at the right. This provides three extra low speeds, amply sufficient to carry the load through the most rigorous going. Any experienced truck owner will know the advantage given him by the design of this new International. Frame, springs, and all chassis members are in keeping—heavy-duty throughout. Bodies for every requirement, including a special grain-tank and stock-rack combination which, with the 2-speed axle, makes this the ideal truck for country roads and fields. The "Six-Speed Special" is provided with four-wheel brakes to match its increased speed and power. The price is surprisingly low.

Speed Special" is provided with four-wheel brakes to match its increased speed and power. The price is surprisingly low.

For these good, practical reasons the Harvester Company has met with an extraordinary demand for its new "Six-Speed Special," and we will undoubtedly have the same demand here. A heavy production schedule is in effect at the factories, already exceeding that of any other International model, and we expect to make all deliveries without delay. However, we urge that you see and drive the truck at your first opportunity, and anticipate your future needs. The truck and its 2-speed-axle principle is worth your study.

Other International models include the ¾-ton Special Delivery; 1¼, 1½, and 2-ton Speed Trucks, both 4 and 6-cylinder; and Heavy-Duty Trucks to 5-ton.

NEW FIRE HALL

A new source of forest fires has been reported by one of the wardens in southern Illinois, according to Mr. R. B. Miller, Chief Forester of the Conservation Department, Springfield, Illinois. Seeing a smoke on a recent Sunday afternoon when the woods were supposed to be too wet to burn, a trip was made by a warden and a helper to the place where it was found that some men had cut a bee tree, and had stuffed in some burning rags to smoke out the bees so they could get the honey. It should be explained, for the benefit of the uninitiated, that a "bee-tree" is a hollow basswood, elm, or sugar maple tree, in which a swarm of bees has been located for years, filling up the hollow trunk with honey. In fact, that is the way the expression "a bee line" originated—it is the direct line of flight of a bee carrying back pollen to his place of residence. Entrance by the bees may be effected through a big knot hole or hollow limb of the tree and honey comb is built up just as in a modern bee hive.

Taking a "bee-line" back to the subject, this fire escaped and burned over six acres of woods before being stopped, and gives a new source of forest fires.

There are no laws against cutting "bee-trees", but the owner of the land could sue the tree cutters for trespass and setting fire to his woods. Men, however, often destroy fine "den-trees" just for a little honey and in robbing the bees, Mr. Miller explained, they should either use a modern smoker or have the decency to put out the burning rags instead of letting a fire escape into the woods and burn over valuable timber and game land.

"It also shows something else", he said,—"how easily a fire may start after a few days of rain, when the surface leaves dry out, so that the fire wardens and others must be at all times watchful and diligent in fire detection."

FOR THE ORIGINAL DRESSER

The smart woman realizes that true distinction is only achieved when her clothes are just a little different from everybody else's. The frock illustrated at the left is up to the minute in every way, and yet is given an individual mark by the graceful, irregular lace collar. The frock may be made up in crepe satin, velvet, crepe de Chine, or canton crepe. The little miss who enjoys being different will love the smart frock at the right. It is just the thing for school made up in checked flannel, or printed wool challis, and a contrasting binding serves to accentuate the original lines of the little model. The Grecian closing and square neck are interesting style points. While exceedingly smart, the frock is easy to make.

The Red Road

A Romance of Braddock's Defeat

CHAPTER I

Beginning the Red Road

The home town looked the same as when I last made for Shooter's Hill, feeling from the ignominy of being little better than a pauper. It was two years since I had been in Virginia, and there were certain outstanding debts which made it embarrassing for me to return.

While the fairs were being held in May and October, all persons coming to Alexandria would be exempt from arrests and executions. And it was not yet Maytime, and I was back without road-bells, as my red friend, the Onondaga, would style immunity from annoyance. I risked great humiliation, but there are certain things a man must do despite his pride; and I had returned because something larger than my personal welfare was concerned.

However, I consoled myself with remembering that much mountain water had flowed down the Potomac since my hasty departure, and that all the colonies were in the midst of stirring times; that the extravagances of Webster Brond would be forgotten now we were at the throat of France once more.

The coming in of many strangers permitted me to remain unnoticed. So it was that my long leggings, my fringed hunting-shirt with its broad cape, my moccasins and long rifle, my ax beside the hunting-knife in my embroidered belt, gave me assurance against recognition until I should reveal my identity when I delivered my news to Governor Dinwiddie.

It was not from choice that I had left my Onondaga comrade over the mountains and come to town, although the old, false pride which had prompted my flight had been washed out by much rough faring and many a desperate plight. It was love for the colony that had drawn me back.

I came fresh from Fort Duquesne and Shanoppin, from the distant Ohio country where the English were but little known, and where the names of Dronillon, Lafort, de Villiers, Jumonville, and others of the French, already were so many war cries among the Indians along the Monongahela and the Allegheny.

Throughout the hurried journey back to Alexandria, I had told myself the past was dead, that "Black" Brond, the forest-runner, was entirely apart from young Webster Brond who had taken such pride in scrawling in his Cheever's Latin Accidence his name with "Gent." affixed.

And now that I was crossing the market-square and was in time to see the Northern Mall, just arrived from Richmond, draw up before the Royal George before continuing its lumbering journey over the king's post-road to the north, I felt the call of my ancestry and turned my steps to the house which my father's love for hospitality and good cheer had lost to me, along with many rich acres.

Some families are unfortunate in coats-of-arms and mottoes. My people had been afflicted with the family device of an outstretched open hand. My father by nature was congenial and convivial, prodigal with good cheer. He had only needed the appellation "Brond of the open hand" to complete his impoverishment. So many times had I seen him set forth to dispose of his crops; so many times had I greeted him on his return with only a trifle left of the season's planting! And so many times did I puff up with pride when he explained his light pockets by saying:

"It's a duty we owe the name, lad. We will plant more, but we will never be niggardly."

I thank God he passed out before the crash came, that he never tasted the bitterness, and that it could be I who was forced to escape petty prosecutions by flight into the wilderness. It would have broken his kind heart could he have known my estrangement from my fellows.

It helped me much to find the place deserted. To have seen others there where my father kept open house, would have grieved me sorely. I sent my love through the paneled door and passed around to the high gate and looked into the garden. Like the house, it showed the lack of human occupancy.

The place was a riot of untrained growth where once orderliness and beauty had graced the winding paths. All that was left to remind me of the golden yesterdays was the aroma of the slow cherry blossoms.

Voices close by aroused me and I turned from the gate. Despite my rough schooling from Lake Erie down to the Falls of the Ohio, my heart went pit-a-patting, just as it had when I wrote her name in my school books.

The fellow with her had been my boon companion. His powdered wig and beruffled shirt, his knee-breeches, gold buckles and silken hose put my travel-stained garb to shame, and I was for turning back to the gate. But I saw a hint of amusement in their curious glances; and, conquering my weakness, I swept off my ragged fur hat with an almost forgotten grace and called myself more vividly to their attention. Busby stared haughtily, as if I were some freakish creature from the unknown wilds. The girl frowned in perplexity; then she reognized me despite my forest dress, and exclaimed:

"Webster Brond!"

Busby stared blankly for a moment, then smiled broadly and cried:

"Curse me if it isn't Brond of the open hand! Where did you come from? And when did you get back? And why do you wear that Indian toggery?"

"Hush!" murmured the girl. I affected not to hear her, nor to wince under the old title, and explained:

"I bring news for his excellency, the governor. I am waiting for him to return from the Maryland shore. I am from Duquesne, and the country I have covered is ill-fitted for finery. The shadow of the war was upon us all. Her fair face flushed, and she softly cried:

"You've been to Fort Duquesne. Webster? How romantic! Our General Braddock will soon be there. Of course you will march with him."

"I shall be glad to serve as a scout." For I was in no way inclined to shunt myself to stiff-necked discipline.

"Then I may see you along the road, Web. I ride with him," said

"Joe and I are to be married, Webster. After General Braddock has finished his little business at Fort Duquesne."

Busby; and with that touch of superiority he ever wore even as a little chap.

Often had I laughed at his patronizing ways, and often had I forgiven him. Mayhap he caught a reminiscent twinkle in my eye; perhaps he thought I was staring too long and intently at his dainty companion, for he abruptly informed me:

"Joe and I are to be married, Webster, after General Braddock has finished his little business at Fort Duquesne."

I smiled and went through the form of congratulating them, but there was a stab in my heart. Not that I had expected to carry a girl's love in my breast during two years of roughing it—and yet I had hoped. She was crimson and angry.

"You should not talk that way," she coldly admonished Busby.

"I am natural. You're artificial, Josephine," he lightly bantered.

I said: "Surely you feel no foolish delicacy in letting an old friend know of your happiness. Forsooth, I'd have to know now, or not at all. This is my good-bye to Alexandria."

At once she was Josephine, the girl I had known. And with wistfulness she deplored:

"I don't like that word 'good-bye.' It's the saddest of all words. I think everything was so peaceful and happy. And now it's war and soldiers, and all our men eager to march against the French. God give them safe return!"

Could we have but known! Could we have but foreseen the outcome of the next few weeks!

First to See Value of Big Advertising

Robert Bonner, for whom Bonner Springs, Kan., is named, New York publisher, was the first to use full-page advertising; and the first journalist to pay large sums for feature articles.

When Edward Everett was raising funds to purchase Mount Vernon Bonner gave him $10,000 for 52 articles known as the Mount Vernon papers, and a like sum to the fund. He also started the literary world by buying eight pages of advertising in the New York Herald. When the press room of the New York Ledger was destroyed by fire he inserted in the daily papers of New York, Philadelphia and Boston the following advertisement: "Unless we are burned out more than Mistress Josephine made me a little curtsy as a signal for her companion to be moving. Busby was inclined to shade hands and instinctively obeyed his English blood by starting to do so, then contented himself with a ceremonious bow. The little lady saw everything and with impulsive frankness, which ever characterized her kind heart, she advanced as Busby fell back.

Seizing my hand for a brief moment she softly murmured:

"We were very young. I did not know. Look out for him on the march."

And with another hurried little curtsy she was walking out of my life, with Busby mumbling and muttering in her small ear—possibly asking to be told what confidences she had imparted to me.

I silently said farewell to the house of the open hand and turned back to the market-square.

I have said the town was the same; and so it was so far as the yellow, white and red chimneys were concerned, for here was the same proportion of slim and fat ones. But it was in physical aspect alone that the town remained unchanged, for the life of the streets was vastly different. There were cannon along the wharf, and there were cannon hauled up to the post-road. There was a frantic passing back and forth of a new population. As I loitered before the Royal George, I was crowded and jostled rudely by a great bustling of people.

At Gadsby's across the way—built three years before by Lord Fairfax from English bricks—was the same lively animation. Squads of soldiers in scarlet coats—scarle, for an Indian campaign when the forest was all a lush green—were being maneuvered about, the square under the hoarse guidance of veteran sergeants. The long rifle I was leaning upon—made by William Henry of Lancaster, soon to be Braddock's armor—was in decided contrast to the Brown Bess carried by the overseas soldiery. Surely this was the finest army England had ever sent across the Atlantic, and most surely there was nothing at Duquesne to prevent the capture of the French fort.

And yet experience was teaching us of the colonies that the English musket was not an effective weapon in the deep woods.

These soldiers of Braddock's, so confident of overrunning the heads of the Ohio, were not taught to aim their weapons, but to point them in the general direction of the enemy and to discharge them in volleys. We of the woods considered every human target we fired at to be a distinct problem; and God knows the target was small enough when consisting of Huron, or any of the Far Indians, or even the French who had campaigned with the red savages.

There was a rattle of wheels. It was General Braddock, riding in the coach he had bought of Governor Sharpe of Maryland.

I barely glimpsed him, a heavy stolid man, whose strong visage seemed to lower on the gaping onlookers. Then he was gone, commander in chief of all his majesty's forces in North America. He impressed me as being self-willed and self-dependent, and one who would be intolerant of any advice. It was commonly known that he was displeased at the manner in which the campaign was progressing—rather, failing to progress. The capture of Fort Duquesne was not bothering him, but to get his army under way was proving to be a most irritating problem. Nor could one blame him for the needless delays, the lack of funds, the wrangling between the colonies.

But we all knew how General Braddock had failed to comprehend local conditions. He seemed unable to grasp the fact, which we of America all knew—namely, that the great mass of Pennsylvania citizens was opposed to any system of taxation that did not include the proprietaries; and that the Quakers were averse to voting any money for military purposes. He only knew that promised supplies were lacking, that recruits were coming in very slowly, and that the Indians thus far had not joined his army. More than once he had complained to the assembled governors that he was "unable to express his indignation."

once a week the New York Ledger will be ready on the news stands of the United States, the Sandwich Islands and New Jersey."

His recreation was driving expensive trotters, owning the best in the land.—Griffith Bonner in the Prism.

Prospective Ruin

"Hey, Aaron!" called Abner Apple-dry, "where you going, all rigged out in your new suit of clothes?"

"Don't tell anybody," replied Aaron Alfred, "but I'm going to ask old man Rackett for his daughter's hand in marriage."

"H'm! Looks like a pity to ruin a new suit of clothes that way."

With a few exceptions mostly in southern counties, wheat seeding is completed in Illinois, it was reported a few days ago by A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician for the state. Most of the crop has been up for some time and it is getting off to a favorable start, said the report, which is issued jointly by the state and federal departments of agriculture. Harvesting of seed, fruit and vegetable crops, together with fall plowing and preparing for corn husking, were the chief farm activities during the first half of October. There has been some threshing of soy beans and clover seed. Broom corn harvest is over, cotton picking is under way, and the gathering of apples and pears well advanced.

Kane county, one of the leading milk production sections of the state, with about 40,000 head of cattle, has more than three-fourths of its dairy herds tested and free from tuberculosis. For the prompt detection and removal of tubercular specimens in the remaining herds, the state department of agriculture plans to send a staff of veterinarians into that county during the coming months. Department officials point out that similar efforts elsewhere are resulting in the prompt elimination of disease. With co-operation of the local cattle owners and officials, they look for like results in Kane county, which will likely be the first accredited county in the section that showed a high percentage of infection when initial tests were made at the time this disease eradication program was placed under state supervision.

The discovery that fishes are subject to rickets, a disease of the bones, which makes them more or less stunted and deformed but does not make them unfit to eat, is described in a bulletin issued a few days ago by the state natural history survey at the University of Illinois. The "knot-head" carp of the Illinois river is rachitic, according to Dr. David H. Thompson, zoologist of the survey staff, who wrote the bulletin. Goldfish, which are closely related to carp, are also subject to the disease. The resemblance to rickets in man and other higher vertebrates is as close as can be expected in view of the anatomical differences between a fish and a mammal, he said. There is no evidence that the rachitic condition in any way impairs the value of the carp as food for man. This unusual condition seems to be due to a deficiency of vitamin D, since the destruction of the green aquatic vegetation which formerly served the carp as forage.

George D. Sutton, private secretary to Gov. Len Small and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, died at his home in Springfield several days ago. Death was due to a heart seizure. Until the attack he apparently had been in his customary health. He had spent the entire day at the executive office. There was no man in Illinois possessed of greater knowledge of the state's affairs than Mr. Sutton. He was concerned as the governor's secretary with thousands of details of departmental administration. The office hours were all too few and there was no hour of the day when he was free from responsibility. Prior to coming to Springfield as private secretary to former Governor Lowden, he had been with Mr. Lowden in Washington while the latter was serving in congress. Mr. Sutton was sixty-one years old at the time of his death.

"They're off at Quincy, Kankakee and Murphysboro," A. D. "Pat" Smith, chief poultryman, Illinois department of agriculture, laconically remarked, as the state's three egg-laying contests got under way for the year-long grind for egg-production records. From the entries in the three experimental projects, officials of the department of agriculture, who conduct this poultry improvement undertaking, expect the poultry year commencing November 1 to bring about additional developments in egg production. All three units are filled to capacity with hens from flocks throughout the state, and many distant sections of the country are represented in the lists.

The October "Better Cream" poster, issued through co-operation of the Illinois Butter Manufacturers' Improvement association, Illinois state department of agriculture, Illinois Dairyman's association, and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce utilizes an attractive cartoon. In this picture, an animated cream can, labeled "Good Cream," posing before the mirror called the market, is reflected in "Better Prices," sparkling with dollars and cents. The poster also tells the reader that good cream is:

1. Clean and smooth; free from foreign odors and flavors.
2. Properly cooled; added to shipping can when cool.
3. Fresh and sweet, or only slightly sour.
4. Testing from 30 per cent to 45 per cent butterfat.
5. Delivered frequently and regularly.

"This poster, like other united efforts of these agencies, is a part of an extensive program under way in Illinois for the improvement of the dairy farming business. Dealers find that it pays better to handle farm commodities of good quality," the director of agriculture, Stillman J. Stanard, explains. "For this reason, we find that any plan of merit, outlined to commercial institutions that are concerned, as a means for the advancement of the farming industry, finds favor."

Necessity for the establishment of more migratory waterfowl refuges in Illinois was emphasized recently by Gus H. Radebaugh, director of the state department of conservation, in an address given before the annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Sportsmen's league. Mr. Radebaugh, speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of the Migratory Bird," called attention to the fact that the Dominion of Canada has established 80 such refuges covering an area of 1,500 square miles. "To take care of the waterfowl that each year seek refuge within the state, to preserve and make certain the propagation of these fowl, to make Illinois the greatest state in the Union for hunters, it is of paramount importance that the state establish regulations over these districts."

A recent white snakeroot outbreak in Henry county proved fatal to fifteen calves and one cow on a farm near Geneseo. "That sucking calves contract trembles from the milk of cows that eat the weed before the cow infecting them show symptoms of the ailment has been repeatedly demonstrated," according to Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture, who has conducted a series of experiments in an attempt to find a cure for snakeroot poisoning. The theory, as Stanard explains it, is that milk cows can pass off the poison through lactation. Snakeroots were found in the pasture where the ill-fated white-faced cattle grazed, and some of it had retained its verdure in spite of general killing frosts. A warning issued by the agricultural officials has resulted in the removal of the cattle from the wooded pasture in which the herd sustaining serious losses grazed.

Selecting the champion corn shucker for 1928 will be the principal farm sport during the coming weeks, says the Illinois Agricultural association, in calling attention to the local contests being sponsored by the county farm bureaus. A dozen or more counties have already scheduled corn shucking matches, the winners of which will defend their titles in the state match being arranged by the Prairie Farmer and the Henry County Farm bureau near Galva on November 2. With corn in excellent husking condition, and the yield all that one desires, experts who have followed the sport in recent years predict that all former records will be placed in the shade by the fast huskers this year. Elmer Williams of Stark county still holds the state record on net bushels husked after deductions, with more than 35 bushels shucked with his old-fashioned peg in one hour and twenty minutes.

Governor Small, who has been on a tour of the East for some time, has returned to his official duties in Illinois. Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling has been acting governor in the absence of Governor Small. Acting in the absence of Governor Small, Lieutenant-Governor Sterling issued a requisition for the governor of Missouri for the return to East St. Louis of Ira Washington, wanted on a charge of robbery. He is under arrest in St. Louis. A requisition has been issued also on the governor of Massachusetts for the return to Chicago of Charles Stone, wanted on a charge of robbery. He is under arrest in Boston.

A person cannot avail herself of both mothers' pension and blind pension act, according to an opinion of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom given to the state's attorney of Jasper county.

Inmates of state institutions for the insane and feeble-minded may not sign insurance papers or other legal documents, Attorney General Carlstrom has advised Roy Ide, director of the state department of public welfare. On the theory that the patients at the Lincoln State school and colony are not competent to sign legal papers, the head of the school has made it a rule to refuse to allow inmates to affix their signatures. To make certain his refusal was justified, Carlstrom's opinion was asked and he upheld the position.

Cycles Carry Poison Gas

Motor cycles equipped with containers of poison gas were recently demonstrated at recent special maneuvers of the French army. The holder is placed on a side-car support. French officials believe that the device solves the problem of quick transportation of the gas.

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster. Musterole is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars & Tubes

Lesson for November 4

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

LESSON TEXT—Romans 13:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Obedience to Law.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Obedience to Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Reasons for Prohibition.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Standing for Law Enforcement.

I. The Christian's Obligation to the State (vv. 1-7).

The believer in Christ is a citizen as well as a Christian. Intelligent Christians will be loyal to the state as well as to the church. Failure to recognize this has brought Christianity into disrepute in many quarters.

1. Obedience to rulers (vv. 1-4).
This obligation is upon all Christians. The reason is that civil government is ordained of God and rulers are His representatives. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is inherently wrong. Submission to rightly constituted authority is the law of the believer's life, not only because God is the source of civil authority, but because it was ordained for beneficent ends.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5).
He should regard it as his obligation, not merely because it serves a good purpose, but because it is morally right. It is a conscientious obligation to obey lawful rulers.

3. Method of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).
(1) In the payment of personal and property taxes.

The citizens who enjoys the benefits of government is morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duty upon merchandise and license fees.

The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations expense is incurred, for which benefit the citizen should pay.

(3) Veneration of magistrates ("fear to whom fear").
Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers, God's representatives.

(4) "Honor to whom honor."
This means that civil officers should be honored because of their service.

II. The Christian's Obligation to His Fellow Citizens (vv. 8-10).

This is summed up in the word "love." This obligation is perpetual. The only debt which is right to owe is that of love. The discharge of this obligation forbids:

(1) Defrauding in matters of property (v. 8).

(2) It forbids going into debt with no certainty of being able to meet one's obligation.

(3) It forbids defrauding in matters of moral purity (v. 9). Where the life is under the power of love, adultery cannot be committed.

(4) It forbids murder.

(5) It forbids stealing.

(6) It forbids coveting.

(7) It forbids the working of any ill to one's neighbor.

III. The Supreme Motive Governing the Life of the Christian (vv. 11-14).

The attitude of the Christian is that of eager expectancy. There is no time for slumber or indifference. The time for salvation is drawing near. The salvation here mentioned is not that which we obtain in justification and sanctification, but is that which we get when our redemption is completed in glorification at the second coming of Christ. Redemption is threefold:

1. Justification through faith in the blood of Jesus.

2. Sanctification through the obedience of the Word.

3. Glorification, when the fullness of redemption shall be realized at Christ's second coming.

The reasons for this attitude of expectancy are that the night of Christ's absence is far spent and the day of His glorious appearing is at hand. The proper conduct in view of this is:

1. To put off the works of darkness (v. 12), which are revelling, drunkenness, chambering, wantonness, strife and jealousy. The child of light will not walk in drunken carousals, will not practice licentious acts and debauchery, neither engage in strife, nor be under the spell of jealousy.

2. Put on the armor of light (v. 12).

The figure here is of the Roman soldier who arose from sleep and put off his slumber robes and put on his gleaming armor.

3. Put on the Lord Jesus Christ (v. 14).

This means to enthroned Jesus Christ as the Lord of the life, to bring the life under His control.

Be Thou an Example

Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.—Paul.

Enter Mr Liverwurst

for Kind-Hubby Medal

Old Mace Liverwurst was asked why he didn't burn gas at his home. He flared up and said that was no one's business and went on to state that he was burning wood for the reason that it gave his wife some outdoor exercise when she chopped it. He says:

"You know she inhales lots of steam while washing clothes, and then when she has to cut the wood she puffs it all out again, consequently her lungs are kept as clean and spotless as her washings."

He then made the statement that he was going to try to make this the most prosperous summer for his wife that she ever has experienced—that he had already hustled three new wash customers for her and expected to get two more before the end of the week. Mace says the hotter it is the better his wife likes to work, and when she sweats freely he knows she is enjoying the best of health. He is certainly a kind and loving husband.—Altoona (Kan.) Tribune.

Vote Against Bond Issues, Urges the Pentone Vedette

viceable roads torn up and the entire cost would be a dead loss to the taxpayers.

The taxpayers in the eastern part of the county are practically unanimous in their opposition to this bond issue at this time. They oppose it because it does not provide a real system of county roads. They do not believe in the county paying for roads constructed primarily to boost values for subdividers and promoters of golf grounds.

Taxes have been increasing at an alarming rate during the last few years. The present burden is almost unbearable and a halt must be called some time. "The power to tax is the power to confiscate and destroy." The farmers have had all the confiscation they feel like submitting to for the present and they want a breathing spell before new burdens are placed on their shoulders.

The opposition to the county bond issue is not confined to the rural districts. Many citizens of Joliet are working against it and are openly saying that it is doomed to defeat.

Citizens wishing to vote against the bond issue must bear in mind that to make their influence felt it is necessary to place an "X" in the square opposite the word "NO." A blank ballot is not counted either for or against.

Our advice is to vote "NO" on this ill advised proposition to build sixteen scraps of road masquerading as a "system".

The other little ballot contains a proposition to bond the State of Illinois for $20,000,000 the money to be used in buying hunting and fishing grounds. The claim is made that the money derived from hunting and fishing licenses will pay off the bonds and interest. Mr. Watson, the tax expert of the Illinois farm bureau, says that this is a mistaken idea and that the law is loosely drawn and that inevitably the taxpayers will be called upon to foot the bill.

This bond issue deserves defeat at the polls on November 6.

Vote "NO" on both little ballots, and by doing so say "HALT!" to the tax eaters who are recklessly spending the people's money like the proverbial drunken sailor. —Pentone Vedette.
